8864 Pallbearer

Pallbearers work for funeral services businesses or funeral cooperatives. They carry caskets or urns at funerals. The casket or urn is first transported to the viewing room at the funeral parlour or taken outdoors to the location where the religious or secular ceremony will take place, then to the cemetery, the mausoleum or the columbarium. The work is carried out in collaboration with other pallbearers. In small companies that are not very busy, the staff often carry out tasks assigned to more than one job. This means that pallbearers may perform the tasks of funeral parlour attendants.

A pallbearer may also drive a hearse or an accompanying vehicle. To drive a hearse, a valid Class 5 driver's licence is compulsory.

8865 Gravedigger

Gravediggers work for funeral services businesses or funeral cooperatives that have a cemetery, for a business that operates a cemetery or for a parish that is responsible for a cemetery. They are responsible for digging and preparing graves and for backfilling them after the caskets have been placed. Gravediggers also prepare crypts and niches in mausoleums and columbariums. In small companies that are not very busy, the staff often carry out tasks assigned to more than one job. This means that gravediggers may perform pallbearer tasks such as lowering caskets into graves.

Note: This "Summary" is not an official document. The MEQ online version is the only up-to-date and official Directory of Semiskilled Trades. In the event of any discrepancies, the online Directory shall prevail.

*However, the situation is different in companies that are very busy. A person who holds a Diploma of Vocational Studies in Construction Equipment Operation could be hired to do the excavation, thus leaving the gravedigger to carry out other activities. To drive a backhoe, a valid Class 5 driver's licence is compulsory.*240401 – Locate the plot for an interment or disinterment
